

Several states, including California and Alabama, are also considering licensure. In Florida, licensure has been required for 40 years. During this time there have been no reported complaints filed against any duly licensed therapist.